

German Studies Seminar

2021-2022 CALL FOR PROPOSALS

Submission Deadline: Friday, June 4, 2021

This seminar provides a forum for scholarship-in-progress in the area of German Studies, broadly defined. We welcome work on modern and pre-modern topics from all disciplinary perspectives, including but not limited to Literature, History, Art History, Philosophy, Music, and the Social Sciences. The seminar is particularly interested in papers that cross disciplinary boundaries, and that reconceptualize the materials and conventions of German Studies as a field, including beyond the frames of the German language and nation state.

During AY 2021-2022, the seminar will meet online on select Fridays from 3-4:30 pm via Zoom. Article-length papers will be pre-circulated in order to allow maximum time for discussion. We encourage faculty and advanced graduate students to apply, and scholars at all stages to attend (For registration information, please visit: newberry.org/registration-information-scholarly-seminars).

If you have questions, please contact the seminar organizers: Alice Goff (University of Chicago), Imke Meyer (University of Illinois Chicago), Sophie Salvo (University of Chicago), Anna Souchuk (DePaul University), Lauren Stokes (Northwestern University), or contact Mary Hale, Assistant Director of Scholarly Programs at the Newberry Library, scholarlyseminars@newberry.org.

To submit a proposal, please visit our webform at <https://www.newberry.org/scholarly-seminar-proposal-form> and upload a one-page proposal, a statement explaining the relationship of the paper to your other work, and a brief CV. Applications will not be accepted via e-mail.

Sponsors: History Department at the University of Chicago, Germanic Studies at the University of Illinois at Chicago, Germanic Studies at the University of Chicago, The Department of Modern Languages at DePaul University, and the Department of History at Northwestern University.
